Land Fighting Is Resumed With Renewed Vigor--No
Let-Up in the Advance Upon Russian Strongholds.

[Special by Scripps-McLain.]
London, Aug. 12.—According to a Tokyo dispatch the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Heshibitchi was taken by the Japanese at Chefoo and is being taken to a Chinese port.

Admiral Killed
London, Aug. 12.—The Evening News in a dispatch from Tsing Tau in Kiao Chou bay, states that Admiral Witkov's legs were blown off in the battle of Wednesday. He was buried at sea. The captain and several other officers were wounded. The Japanese followed the Czarvitch to give battle a second time.

At St. Petersburg
London, Aug. 12.—A St. Petersburg correspondent of the Central News wires the official details of Wednesday's fight. Admiral Witkov was standing on the bridge of the battleship Czarvitch at the height of the battle when a shell exploded blowing him to atoms. The casualties aboard the Czarvitch was 210 killed and sixty wounded. The battleship reached Kiao Chou with her steering apparatus shot away. Most of the machinery is damaged so it is practically useless.

Have Intrenched
St. Petersburg, Aug. 12.—A member of the Russian general staff stated today that the Russian position at Liao Yang was practically impregnable, owing to the work of Kuropatkins engineers. The wall about the city has been utilized. The heavy artillery is mounted and also an elaborate system of trenches is about the city.

Leave Liao Yang
London, Aug. 12.—A dispatch to the Evening Star from Tientsin says the report that the Russians have evacuated Liao Yang without fighting and after burning the railway station.

More News
London, Aug. 12.—The Japanese embassy has received a report from Togo of today's date, which says five of the six Russian battleships which engaged the Japanese fleet on Aug. 10th, are believed to be seriously damaged. The Pobedas had her mast broken off and her big guns ceased working before the battle was over. The Retvizan apparently suffered the most, owing to her concentrated shells, firing at the cruisers from a distance of thirty-five hundred yards. As a result this class of vessels is probably less seriously damaged than the Russian battle ships. The Russian cruiser Tashan did not emerge from Port Arthur. The message adds the Japanese damage has already been temporarily repaired.

Are Scattered
Chefoo, Aug. 12.—Scattered in all directions, battered and widely separated, the various ships of the Russian Port Arthur squadron are being relentlessly pursued by detachments of the great Japanese fleet under Admiral Togo.

Destruction of the last remnants of the Russians seems a certainty within a few days at the longest. Mystery still shrouds the whereabouts of several of the vessels that fled from Port Arthur Wednesday and tried to escape, after engaging the Japanese cruisers and destroyers in a fierce sixteen-hour combat.

The Japanese armored cruiser Kasuga, holding 375 officers and men, is at the bottom of the sea off Round Island. This report was officially confirmed last night. This is the most serious wound inflicted on the Japanese navy, and is evidence of the severity of the all-day battle. No man escaped from the Kasuga, the vessel going down suddenly and like a stone, while an effort was being made to beach her.

Togo in Relentless Hunt
Admiral Togo is prosecuting a remarkable hunt, bent on destroying the last vestiges of the demoralized and crippled Russian squadron.

Battles, or duels between fleeing Russian ships and the overwhelming Japanese pursuers, are impending at three points. News is expected here hourly reporting a renewal of fighting outside the harbor of Port Arthur.

Five battleships, including the Retvizan and Pobeda, the cruiser Diana, the hospital ship Moncalca and several destroyers are reported to be back in Port Arthur.

Watch Harbor
St. Petersburg, Aug. 12.—The telegram from Kiao Chou says the German cruiser has arrived there to prevent the Japanese from entering the harbor in pursuit of Russian war vessels which have taken refuge in the harbor.

WILLIAM BRYAN LOSES
THE BENNETT BEQUEST

Connecticut Supreme Court Holds That Letter Giving Nebraska $50,000 Is Not Part of Will.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 12.—William J. Bryan can have no part of the Philo S. Bennett estate. The supreme court has handed down a decision refusing to approve as a part of Mr. Bennett's will a letter to his wife directing her to pay $50,000 to the Nebraska, and holding that the doctrine of incorporation by reference has no legal standing in this state.

The decree affirms the finding of the lower court and leaves no ground for Mr. Bryan to carry the case to a higher tribunal. The letter on which the claim was based was written by Mr. Bennett May 22, 1900, and directed that Mr. Bryan be given the sum of $50,000, which had been bequeathed to her in trust in Mr. Bennett's will.

The trust clause in the will referred to in this letter, but did not mention specifically the purpose for which the money was set aside.

Indianapolis, Aug. 12.—Mr. Bryan, Indianapolis, Aug. 12.—Mr. Bryan, who was here, said of the ruling: "It was a close question to decide."

MRS. MAYBRICK
TELLS A STORYShe Describes the Great Kindness Her Many Friends Have Shown Her in the Past.

DOES NOT SUFFER PHYSICALLY NOW

Her Mental Powers Have Not Suffered From Her Long
Confinement--Pretty and Bright as Ever--
Comes to America.

[Special by Scripps-McLain.]
London, Aug. 12.—The Daily Chronicle publishes a three-column interview with Mrs. Florence Maybrick, mostly concerned with her experiences during her life in prison. The interviewer describes Mrs. Maybrick as clear witted, outspoken, mildly robust and in no way shattered, either physically or mentally, though her face is drawn as with grief and suffering, and says that she answered the questions put to her frankly and without embarrassment or nervousness.

Describing the arrangements for her release, Mrs. Maybrick said she could never hope to repay the debt of gratitude she owed Ambassador Choate, Henry White, secretary of the American embassy, and other kind friends, and she wished it known how good the officials of the American embassy had been to her as a practical recognition of the fact that the United States immigration commissioners had decided that she would be regarded as an American citizen. She said that Ambassador Choate provided a gentleman escort for her when she left Turin.

Protests Innocence of Murder.
To the interviewer Mrs. Maybrick protested her innocence as firmly as she had done at the beginning and said: "I am praying for the time when my innocence will be proved to the world." She said she experienced nothing but kindness from the prison officials and spoke with deep gratitude of the late Lord Chief Justice Russell's efforts in her behalf. The last time she saw Baron Russell he took her hands in farewell and said: "Be brave and strong. I believe you to be innocent and shall do all I can for you."

Mrs. Maybrick declared that she was most anxious to get to the United States, saying: "I shall feel happier there."

Mrs. Maybrick requested the interviewer to quote her as sending the following message to her friends: "To you all I give my heartfelt thanks for your noble fight in behalf of an innocent and defenseless woman. I earnestly pray that the day is not far distant when the proof of the wrong that has been done me will be demonstrated."

May Change Her Name.
Mrs. Maybrick was unable to say anything as to her plans after the lawsuit which she has brought in the United States has been settled. "I want," she said, "a change of scene, to forget and to forgive and to spend my time with kind-hearted friends."

Asked whether she would change her name, Mrs. Maybrick replied: "I do not know. I am afraid I shall have little peace while I hold that of Maybrick, but why should it be so? Let me die out of memory. I have suffered enough, God knows. Make the rest of my days as easy as you can."

TWO BLIND MEN KILL FRIEND FOR BURGULAR
Aged Prisoners Tell Peculiar Story of Mistaking Visitor for Robber and Are Held for Trial.

Kewanee, Ill., Aug. 12.—Bound and beaten by two blind men—James Brennan and Henry Gould—who had invited him to their shanty to spend the evening, John Gomersoll, an octogenarian, suffered injuries Thursday night which resulted in his death Friday.

At the coroner's inquest Gould and Brennan, who are over 70 years old, were held to the grand jury, and are now in the county jail.

The defendants tell a circumstantial story of mistaking their victim for a burglar and setting upon him, but from the fact that they know Gomersoll, well and were entertaining him the authorities are inclined to doubt all of the explanation.

When Gomersoll, who was about 80 years old, met his old friends on the street here he accepted their invitation to go to their house in Napoleon, eight miles east of here. When the village marshal passed the shanty early in the evening he saw them engaged in friendly conversation.

About 4 o'clock Friday morning Brennan made his way to the home of J. C. Blackburn, aroused Mr. Blackburn, and told him he and Gould had captured a burglar and had him planned down under a chair. Teaching the blind men on the chair was Gould, who, according to the blind men's story, was left at the house to guard the supposed burglar.

The aged prisoner was unable to explain matters, and soon died.

American Fleet in Turkish Waters Appears to Be Having Desired Effect on the Sultan.

Washington, Aug. 12.—Advices to the state department from Minister Leshman at Constantinople are encouraging and indicate a disposition on the part of the sultan to be more considerate of America's demands now that an American fleet is at a Turkish port. Nothing definite, however, has yet been accomplished in the direction of actual concessions.

Constantinople, Aug. 12.—Naoum Pasha, under secretary of foreign affairs, called on Minister Leshman Friday. He reiterated the assurance of the government regarding a speedy and favorable reply to the demands touching the rights of American citizens in Turkey. Subsequently Izzet Pasha, secretary of the palace, and Minister of Mines Selim Pasha had a long interview with Minister Leshman for the purpose of determining upon a reply which may prove acceptable to America.

CUTS OFF GIRL'S HAND FOR TAKING BITS OF ICE
New York Mob Chases Italian Who Mains Cold With an Ax as She Reaches for a Small Piece.

New York, Aug. 12.—Because Lillian Carson, aged 7, went into his basement to get a piece of ice, Alessandro Corrotto, and his man, cut off her hand with an ax as she reached out for it. The little girl fell unconscious. An angry mob chased Corrotto through the streets, threatening to lynch him. But the man eluded them and hid in his house, where he was arrested. He was held in $1,000 bail when arraigned in court.

It has been a custom of the children of the neighborhood to gather little pieces of ice from the wagons that visit the neighborhood, and no objection has ever been found by the ice-men. When the little girl saw Corrotto at work chipping a block of ice in his basement she went down and tried to get a small piece.

"Take your hand away," snarled Corrotto.

Before the girl could withdraw her hand Corrotto brought his ax on it, severing it at the wrist.

OLD FOGY WOULD IMPROVE CITY

SUGGEST THE SLOGAN JANESVILLE THE BEAUTIFUL.

TALKS ON THE FOUNTAINS

Mentions Police Matters and Discusses the Beauty of The Rock River.

To the Editor: In a recent letter to the Gazette I advocated the establishment of a suitable drinking fountain for man and beast on the Corn Exchange in place of the present fountain. Since the publication of the letter I took the pains to learn by conversation what the sentiment of the merchants on those corners really was. Almost unanimously the opinion was in favor of a new drinking fountain to take the place of the present nuisance. As a suggestion to the council I would suggest that one of the four fountains to be built by the city be placed on the corn exchange and one at the lower end of the court house park where the old wooden trough now stands. At both these places an innumerable number of animals are brought to drink each day and a good clear running fountain would be a blessing to our dumb friends whose rights should be considered somewhat. As regards the Corn Exchange fountain the present system is a nuisance and should be abolished.

Janesville Beautiful.
Janesville beautiful would make a good motto for every citizen to follow. Let everyone keep their lawns cut, the walks repaired, their trees trimmed and have flower gardens or grass plots so that strangers will get the right idea of the city. Men are coming here continually to look over the grounds for new factory sites and if they see a neat clean city presented to their eyes they will know we are a thrifty community and one in which good clean laborers live. It will do much to encourage people to settle here and a larger population means a better cleaner city and more money in circulation. Janesville beautiful could be taken as a watchword which would help make this city a happy spot. Then too if this was taken up in earnest some of the alleys about the down town district would have to be cleaned weekly at least instead of fall and spring and risk of contagion reduced to a minimum. There are some places in the city where the term would be a misnomer but generally speaking the city is beautiful.

City Guardians.
The question of the enforcement of the city laws has been left somewhat alone of late. We are still in the same situation, regarding police matters, we were in many months ago. Able work was done about eleven times by Acting Chief Brown and Pannaz, but still there is much more to be done than the present force cannot cope with in its present state. What is needed is reorganization and the dropping of some dead timber. It is not the duty of a policeman to gossip with every friend he sees on the street and smoke cigars, but to watch out for the safety and comfort of the people. Games are again accumulating in the court house park in the afternoon that should be driven out. The holes have not yet been taught their lesson and the tough element of the city still ignore the power of the law to a certain extent. There are no workmen hunting for jobs wandering about the city or country nowadays. The species that visit your back doors are genuine bohobos or Yeezomen looking for a good place to get a "stake".

Beautiful River.
I am sure the residents of Janesville do not appreciate the Rock river as they should. Aside from being a useful stream in an early day it is really a beautiful stream today despite the dirt, stumps, and filth that is to be found in its waters. Perhaps many of the residents of Janesville of today do not know that in an early day the settlers used to float large rafts of tamarack poles down its stream and that many of the houses in the old days had tamarack poles for rafters and supporting beams. Once there was a steamer which was built to ply between Janesville and Mississippi river points. This is now a thing of the past, but the steamers have taken its place and are working as pleasure boats between the many dams that have checked the current within the past forty years. Above the upper dam a most enjoyable afternoon might be spent wandering along the banks and viewing the scenery. The river is particularly beautiful above the four-mile bridge and here are also delightful picnic spots. To people living on the western plains this river would seem to be a God send, but it is doubtful if it is appreciated by Janesville people as it ought.

LOCAL TOBACCO MEN BUY OLD GOODS

The New Crop Is Doing Well, But Will Stand Considerable Rain.

The absence of the usual amount of rainfall the past month over quite a large portion of the tobacco growing territory of the state, says the Edgerton Tobacco Reporter, has very seriously impaired the present prospects of the crop. What at the close of the planting season had an even growth and almost perfect stand upon the fields has since, owing to the effect of the drought on the different soils, become uneven in size and so varying in quality that growers are disappointed in the outlook. To secure a satisfactory tobacco crop it seems almost necessary that there be a fair distribution of moisture during the month of July. Without this a steady, uniform growth and an early harvest can scarcely be expected. Should rains come now to relieve the parched condition of the ground, unless they be followed by warm weather, the conditions would not improve. The weather of the week has been too cold, and even in the sections where rain has fallen the crop is not making the progress it should. The temperature sank so dangerously near the frost mark several nights during the week that growers began to fear a repetition of last season. There is no disguising the fact that the prospects of the present tobacco crop have declined many points the past two weeks. It is not alone the tobacco, but corn, sugar beets and all other products are under the same shadow.

Edgerton.
There is a little riding in the country districts and a picking away at the remnants of saved goods remaining in first hands, otherwise the local tobacco markets are extremely quiet. The drought over the southern growing sections was broken Tuesday by a copious rain, and it followed by warm weather there is yet hope that the medium set fields will develop good tobacco. A late fall will be necessary to complete anything like a satisfactory crop. Tobacco is such a recuperative plant and matures so rapidly under favorable weather there is no telling at this date what the harvest will yet be. The situation is much more encouraging at this writing.

The shipments out of storage to all points from this market do not exceed sales for the week past.

Janesville.

Little change has been manifest in the leaf market this week from that of last, there being about the same amount of cases sold, and perhaps little more of the 1903 being bought. There is no asserting in progress now, the last dealer of the city to close his room for the season being Robert Eiler who shut down Tuesday morning of this week. At the closing of this house a most pleasant affair took place. Mr. Eiler had made ample preparations for the occasion and had on hand an abundant supply of ice cream and cake, after which the employees in return of their high esteem for their employer presented to him a handsome silver cup of gold lining and spoon. Yet these gifts are not to remain in his possession long, for their arrival in town a few days ago an heir to these treasures.

Gen. H. Ramill broke through the lines and put dull times at his place to flight by buying seven cars of 1903 goods from the north section of the state, and sold 4385 of 1904 during the week.

Fisher & Fisher bought 515 of 1901 and report the shipments as very light.

EDWARD RUGER'S FIGURES TOO LOW

Advance in Cost of Material and Labor Cause a Difference of $1,400 in the Last Bids.

City Clerk Johnson of Edgerton has received a letter from Edward Ruger of this city on the subject of the discrepancy in the cost of the main sewer as estimated by him when the survey was made and the figures of the bids presented. Mr. Ruger shows that the advance in the price of sewer pipe more than makes up the difference. This rise he gives as more than $1,400 in the amount used. Labor too has advanced, which, together, makes a sum larger than the difference between the Ruger estimate two years ago and the present bid of the Hayes Bros. Co.

CIRCUS RIDER MET A TERRIBLE DEATH

Death raced with Frederick Peckham of the Barnum & Bailey circus in the great five horse tandem hippodrome spectacle which concludes the performance. He never regained consciousness and died a few hours afterwards in the Fond du Lac hospital.

MANY VISITED NEW PARK LAST NIGHT

Summer Theatre Was Well Filled, and Everyone Was Well Pleased with Performers.

It was a perfectly refined and good natured audience that gathered at the little theatre in Electric park last evening to enjoy the singing and dancing and the biograph pictures. The miniature amusement place boasts of one box with ten or more seats, a three-light machine, some tasty stage scenery, plenty of mosquito netting to protect patrons from the insect tribe, and numerous placards reminding visitors that no smoking is allowed and advising ladies to take off their hats. Dennis Hayes and his guests, Henry McKinney, A. N. Jones, H. H. Jackson, and James Richardson, occupied the box. Prof. Lakos orchestra played several numbers at the beginning of the two hours' entertainment. Miss Von Klein made an immediate hit in her opening song and in the Spanish dancing which followed. She wore some very pleasing and effective costumes. Her best work was in the Dutch song and dance act in the second part of the program. Wilson in his clog dancing and singing and Mable Dempster in her topical ones were also good. Karl Burdick responded to two encores for his illustrated ballads. After the entertainment proper was concluded Harry Burns held the crowd in the open air with an exhibition of clever bag punning. He introduced a number of tents which were entirely new and his work was greeted with frequent applause. The management announced an acrobatic team, Kallender the juggler, and the Andrews & Field skates team for next week, with a sacred concert by the Imperial band tomorrow. A high diver has been secured for the week following. Three hundred witnesses the performance last night and if the patronage continues to be as good Michael Bush proposes to make improvements next season which will make the local summer theatre as good as any in the west.

For the first time this season perfect watermelons have been offered to the public. Several carloads of Missouri melons were shipped into the city and are fast being retailed. The weather yesterday was just right for melons. As E. J. Murphy, the wholesale fruit dealer, said:

"The person that buys one melon will come back to get another."

Home grown apples have been comparatively poor thus far but answer for cooking purposes. Otherwise they are not tempting although the price has fallen nearly one-half during the week. California plums are slowly disappearing, those remaining on the market are shrivelled up. Fresh Virginia sweet potatoes are meeting with a ready sale as they are quite a novelty on the market. All the leading grocers seemed to be stocked with a good supply of radishes from the Janesville gardeners. Squashes are commencing to mature and some have already been brought to the city. A few berries may still be bought, among them blueberries and Michigan blackberries.

No change was reported in the butter and egg market, nor will there be any for the next week. Yesterday was rather encouraging to the farmers and a strong hope was expressed that such warm days may continue. Threshing goes on with unabated vigor.

Price of Flour Advanced.
Adverse reports from the wheat-growing districts and the continuance of the far eastern war have advanced the price of wheat considerably of late and with it flour has taken an upward start. The article is quoted at from $1.45 to $1.50 a sack and is likely to be still higher. This price is an advance of 10 per cent, within a month.

Suggestions for Sunday Dinner.

Elberta peaches, Michigan and Delaware grapes, watermelon, pears, sweet corn, sweet potatoes, radishes, silver bass, and lobsters, together with the usual roast, is an available array, enough to satisfy the most exacting Janesville epicure.

The close of the week marks the appearance of several new fruits on the market. The famous blue grapes of Michigan and the long expected peaches from the same state are among the new arrivals. The grapes are somewhat sour and the peaches hard and green, but their presence is a sign of better fruits soon to come. Dealers report that the southern peaches have been better this year than for many seasons. They claim that the Elbertas are far superior to the Michigan peaches for preserving purposes and many people are taking advantage of the low prices prevailing by canning large quantities.

For the first time this season perfect watermelons have been offered to the public. Several carloads of Missouri melons were shipped into the city and are fast being retailed. The weather yesterday was just right for melons. As E. J. Murphy, the wholesale fruit dealer, said:

All the leading grocers seemed to be stocked with a good supply of radishes from the Janesville gardeners. Squashes are commencing to mature and some have already been brought to the city. A few berries may still be bought, among them blueberries and Michigan blackberries.

No change was reported in the butter and egg market, nor will there be any for the next week. Yesterday was rather encouraging to the farmers and a strong hope was expressed that such warm days may continue. Threshing goes on with unabated vigor.

Price of Flour Advanced.
Adverse reports from the wheat-growing districts and the continuance of the far eastern war have advanced the price of wheat considerably of late and with it flour has taken an upward start. The article is quoted at from $1.45 to $1.50 a sack and is likely to be still higher. This price is an advance of 10 per cent, within a month.

Scores of Places Are To Be Filled—Examinations Come This Fall.

The United States civil service commission will hold a number of department examinations at Washington during the coming fall, open to all citizens of this country who comply with the requirements, except residents of Delaware, Maryland, Nevada, Vermont, Virginia, Wyoming, and the District of Columbia. These discriminations are made on account of the excessive number of appointments which those states have received under the appointment.

On Aug. 17 an examination will be held for applicants to fill a vacancy in the position of veterinarian in the Philippine service at a salary of $1,600 a year, and other similar vacancies as they may occur. Age limit, 18 to 40 years.

An examination for engineer draftsman in the supervising architect's office, announced for Aug. 17, 18 and 19, has been postponed to Sept. 14, 15 and 16. The salary attached to this position is $1,200 a year. Age limit, 20 years or over.

On Aug. 31 an examination will be held to fill a vacancy in the position of agricultural clerk (either sex) in the bureau of entomology, United States department of agriculture. Salary, $720 a year. Age limit, 20 years or over.

An examination will also be held on that day to fill a vacancy in the position of skilled laborer, qualified as wireman, in the office of the secretary of the treasury, at a salary of $720 a year. Age limit, 20 years or over.

An examination will also be held on Aug. 31 to fill a vacancy in the position of bookkeeper in the reclamation service, with a salary of $2,000 a year. Age limit, 20 years or over, but the department desires a person between the ages of 30 and 35 years.

An examination will be held on September 1 and 8 to fill a vacancy in the position of librarian at the general service and staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kas., at a salary of $1,000 a year. Age limit, 20 years or over.

On Sept. 7 an examination will be held to fill a vacancy in the position of laboratory assistant in the pharmacology in the bureau of plant industry, department of agriculture, at a salary of $750. Age limit, 20 years or over.

Special attention is called to an examination to be held on Sept. 14 to fill several vacancies in the position of meat inspector in the bureau of animal industry, department of agriculture. Applicants must be graduates of veterinary colleges and not younger than 20 years.

JANESVILLE GUN CLUB WILL ATTEND

The Second Annual Tournament of the Edgerton Club Wednesday, August 17th.

The second annual tournament of the Edgerton Gun Club will be shot from their grounds Wednesday, August 17th. Invitations have been received by members of the Janesville Gun Club and many neighboring cities will be present. A large sized delegation is expected to be present on that day. The shooting is to be over expert traps, commences at 9 o'clock and lasts throughout the day. Entries for events not shot will be refunded, and the society will do everything possible to insure satisfaction and give participants a good time. Carl Peters is the secretary and if you think of taking part in this shoot, call on or write him.

GOOD NEWS FOR MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS.

How often do we see a naturally beautiful face marred by wrinkles, blackheads, blotches and pimples, caused in the majority of cases by inactivity of the pores of the skin. These minute openings fail or are unable to perform their natural functions, hence the skin is disfigured.

We are pleased to say that the new remedy Parnacanth makes the skin soft, smooth and healthy, by creating a natural activity in the pores.

When applied, Parnacanth opens the pores, stimulates circulation, removes congestion and any inflammation by inducing perspiration. It draws out the impurities and removes blackheads, pimples, blotches, etc., in a perfectly safe and sure manner.

If applied freely to the face twice a day, morning and night, and rubbed in well, then covered with a hot towel for two or three minutes, it will not only cool and soothe but remove the troubles and impart a healthy peach bloom glow to the skin that will please even the most particular woman.

Parnacanth positively does not contain anything that will injure even the most delicate skin. It is clean, safe, cooling, soothing, application that every mother and daughter can use every day in the year with pleasing and satisfactory results.

A trial will convince you. So get a bottle of Parnacanth to-day from your druggist, if it fails to do what we claim, go back to your druggist, the man you know, and get your money. We guarantee every bottle to give satisfaction, money back if not.

Sold only in 25c, 50c and $1.00 bottles. —The Parnacanth Company, Louisville, Ky., U. S. A.

AMONG THE WORLD'S WORKERS

News Notes From Various Sources of Great Interest to the Workingman.

The International Typographical Union is composed of 637 unions, with a membership of over 50,000. At its coming convention it will be proposed to raise a fund of half a million dollars for the purpose of establishing an eight-hour day in every printing office in the United States and Canada. Each union will be asked to pay into the international treasury $10 from each member enrolled.

Bradstreet's says: "Unrest in industry is a feature of importance. The meat strike has resulted in leading the class of sympathetic strikes, embracing railroad employees. In addition to the 25,000 meat trade strikers, production of print cloths at Fall River has come to an almost complete stop, owing to the strike of 25,000 mill hands against a reduction. In addition to these troubles, the dullness in anthracite coal and the overstocked condition of all markets renders serious existing disputes between operators and miners. A general shutdown of all mines is expected to occur next week, involving the idleness of 80,000 men."

Four hundred lumbermen at Mt. Cloud, Shasta County, Cal., have gone on strike for an increase of from $2 to $1.25 per day. The strike affects about 1,200. Last year the wages were $2.25 per day, but 19 large corporations in Northern California decided to reduce the wage to the present scale.

A call has been issued for the annual meeting of the executive committee of the Civic Federation to be held in St. Louis, Mo., early in September. It is probable that the subcommittee, composed of Francis L. Robinson, Bishop Potter and John Mitchell will report to this meeting their selection of a president of the organization as a successor to the place made vacant by the death of Senator M. A. Hanna.

June report of the British Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners shows a membership of 72,372, of whom 4,816 were on donation benefit, 1,438 on sick benefit, and 1,508 on superannuation allowances, a total of 6,762 on the funds during the month.

"A Girl from Dixie," which comes to the Myers Grand Opera House Friday, Aug. 13, as given under the direction of Sam S. Shubert, is his newest endeavor in the field of musical comedy and is the work of Harry H. Smith, author of "Robin Hood," etc. The English method of having several composers contribute their efforts to a production has been followed and the following representative list of musicians have furnished the various numbers each written in characteristic style, so that the wide variety is afforded music lovers: Victor Herbert, Ludwig Engländer, Baldwin Sloan, Cole & Johnson, George Rosey, Max Witt, Will Marion Cook, William E. Boek, Henry Waller and Manuel Klein. The characteristics of each, affording a scope wide enough to permit all the charge to be rung down from sympathetic to the most classicism.

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Saturday, August 13, 1864.—Misapprehension.—In our remarks the other day in relation to the practice of boys hanging around locomotives and cars, we did not intend to carry the idea that the late Henry Andrews, who was killed by being run over was in the habit of indulging in this dangerous habit or practice, for we did not know that such was the case. We now learn that he was a quiet and obedient boy, who rarely absented himself from home without leave, but in this instance was induced to get onto the engine for the purpose of riding up to the picnic grounds above the bridge.

Capt. Putnam. Just now, we should judge that he was going into the clothing business on an extensive scale, as we indeed believe he is. In fact he proposes to recloth in handsome style something like 2,200 of his fellow citizens. From the looks of the boxes we think there is nothing in them that suits us.

There will be a religious meeting at the court room on Sunday, the 14th instant, at 10 o'clock.

Baby's coming into the world should be preceded by a certain preparation on the part of every woman who expects to become a mother. She owes it as a duty to her unborn babe, and to herself, her duty to her unborn babe is to use every means within her power to aid his entrance into the world. Baby cannot help himself in this ordeal, therefore mother must. He has a hard enough time after his arrival, so let us make his coming easy. His health in after life depends greatly upon the manner of his coming: would you have your child a cripple, or would you have him a tower of strength? Strong men are but grown-up children; a famous surgeon in Vienna is devoting his life-work to the cure of little helpless cripples, deformed by birth; do not allow your child to become a cripple.

Mother's Friend

Is a Balm which will forestall any possibility of accident at birth; that is, it relaxes all the abdominal muscles and tissues, and permits of an easy access to the child. It eases the mother's pain, and so assists nature that when baby comes he starts out in life with a constitution well able to fight life's battles, and to bloom into strong manhood that is the comfort and delight of every true mother's heart.

VERDICT OF THE PARTY

From the report of the Committee on Credentials to the REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION, which was unanimously adopted by that convention, June 22, 1904.

Your committee report it to be their final judgment that the convention which elected John D. Spooner, J. V. Quarles, J. W. Schuch and Emil Baensch as delegates at large, and their alternates at large, to this convention from the state of Wisconsin, WAS THE REGULAR CONVENTION OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY IN WISCONSIN, and that the delegates elected by it are the regular delegates at large from the state of Wisconsin to the republican convention and, as such, are entitled to seats in this convention.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

Two young men sat in a billiard hall, the other evening, watching a game. They were not losers nor winners, in fact, they were total abstainers, but they enjoyed a game of billiards as a pastime, and occasionally played when they could find a hall where liquor was not sold.

One of them had been reared in a Methodist home while the other would have been an Episcopalian had he been a church member, but neither belonged to the church, and seldom attended. Fred said:

"Ned, I notice that your Bishop Potter, of New York, got his foot in it the other day by helping to dedicate a respectable saloon. What do you think of the performance?"

"Well," said Ned, "I haven't thought much about it, but I am inclined to think if I lived in New York that I would attend Bishop Potter's church. They tell me that he is broad minded and liberal, and very popular with the boys."

"Well, I should think he might be," Fred replied, "but I don't believe he'll have a chance to preach in any church very much longer. Your own people denounce him, and the W. C. T. U. and church people generally find it difficult to express their indignation."

"Yes, I know," Ned said, "and presume he has gone a step too far, but I like him just the same. His heart is right if he does err in judgment now and then."

The boys had struck a topic that is being discussed more, just now, by church people, than any subject which has agitated the religious world for a dozen years.

Outside the church to which Bishop Potter belongs, the criticism is largely upon the church itself, while within the fold which the Bishop represents, the man himself is censured.

The religious press will doubtless do full justice to the occasion, and the secular press will hardly be expected to treat the question from the standpoint of morals.

In the minds of many good people the saloon represents the incarnation of all that is bad. It could be abolished without this world would become a paradise, and sin and temptation would disappear like the dew in the morning sun.

This class of people confine their thinking and their enthusiasm, so far as questions of moral reform are concerned, to a single channel.

There are some stubborn facts connected with life in the great centers of population, that this class of people are prone to overlook. One of them is the saloon as a factor which no amount of legislation can ever suppress.

New York with its mixed population of two and a half million people, representing the habits and appetites of every nation in the world, not in a meager way but in force, demands the saloon or its equivalent.

Bishop Potter has long been associated with this mixed population, not as a spectator, but in close touch with the masses. He has studied conditions thoughtfully and intelligently, until he has come to believe that the only way to remedy an evil which cannot be abolished is to cleanse it from some of its most objectionable features, that he has not been attired in the garb of "the cloth" his efforts would have been pronounced most commendable.

The fact is generally recognized that the saloon is an such of a fixture in American life, as the church or the school. This is especially true of the cities.

Bishop Potter has long been confronted with this fact in New York. He discovered, as does every other man who studies the question from an unprejudiced standpoint, that the saloon is the one and only place where the masses congregate, being always assured of a cordial welcome. He also discovered that the saloon was inviting in appearance and that good fellowship prevailed.

Some years ago the Bishop attempted to introduce this atmosphere into the saloon by establishing, in various parts of the city, temperance resorts similar to the saloon, with intoxicants left out.

The experiment was a failure through lack of patronage and the moral support to which it was entitled. The Bishop has now gone a step farther and in his attempt to meet the devil on his own ground, he will of course be outwitted.

Bishop Spalding, of Peoria, a noted Catholic divine, says of Bishop Potter:

"As to the experiment in New York, designed to meet conditions greatly different from those which obtain here, it is difficult to speak intelligently. I suppose we can rely upon New York to meet her own civic and social problems, but in general it seems to me that so far as this new saloon tends to mitigate the old evils it may be accepted as a fortunate compromise measure."

"I should welcome any innovation that would tend to minimize the grosser manifestations of the drink evil, and while this experiment can scarcely be thought of as of significance when the scope of the liquor traffic is considered, it may be looked upon as an indication that the old and righteous battle for a more ordered, a more decent condition of life in our cities is not being suffered to decline in heartiness and sincerity. Surely nothing can be gained through insincerity, and to my mind it is visionary to suppose that prohibition can be established in our great cities. Certain highly immoral tendencies, which exist at this time in connection with the saloon, however, can be eradicated, and the blow should, to my mind, be struck first in that direction; let us be clear-sighted idealists, for only to that extent shall our ideals and our devotion to them prevail."

"The worst curse of the saloon as it is now operated is the dance hall maintained in connection. This is a mere interchamber to the brothel, and is needless. Then there are city ordinances governing the closing. These are of primary importance to the reformer, and there is no reason, if any, why there should not be so remedied as to enforce the closing of the gin-shop at a decent hour. It is late closing that strikes at the very heart of the family life in the outrageous often of the wife's sensibilities when the husband comes home to his family in a drunken condition."

The time will come when good people will realize that it is a long stride from the street to the church, and that the Y. M. C. A., with all of its effective work, fails to interest the masses. What America needs is a halfway house somewhere, made so attractive and inviting that young men will be induced to stop. The livery of the devil is very inviting and much of it can be appropriate without contamination.

Evening Wisconsin: You don't find republicans shouting themselves hoarse to the effect that their party is "sane and safe." It has never been anything else.

Evansville Review: A very neat write-up of our townsman, Col. G. W. Hall, appeared in the Saturday issue of the Gazette. Well, the colonel is deserving all that was said of him.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: No one ever so much as thought of the word "alibi" in connection with the record of the late Senator Vest.

Minneapolis Times: When the democrats of Kansas or the republicans of Texas hold a state convention there are no crowds around the bulletin boards.

Chicago Record-Herald: The prices of wheat and corn are going up rapidly. Where are the vegetarians who were talking so loudly a few days ago?

Waterbury Republican: The Ignorance at St. Louis were ordered to wear pants, but are not wearing them. Judge Parker ordered a gold plank inserted in the democratic platform, but it is not there.

Racine Journal: Senator Spooner says the matter is now with the court and that he has nothing further to say on the subject. If the whole state would take this view things would wonderfully advance towards harmonizing. Both sides, not just one.

Green Bay Gazette: Theodore Thomas in attempting to appease the wrath of the Milwaukeeans regarding his statement that the city is not a modest city writes a short communication to the press and in other words says the same thing over again. Poor Thomas, or poor Milwaukee.

Hudson Star-Times: Democrats insist that the money question is not an issue. It will be an issue as long as men work for wages, and measure their material prosperity in dollars and cents and no political party with the backbone of a boiled carrot can ever afford to ignore it.

Eau Claire Leader: So Mr. Kempf spent $2,000 last spring in the convention fight for Governor La Follette, and it was this contribution which rendered him unable to make good the shortage immediately. Well! Well!

Chicago Chronicle: People whose business it is to watch summer travel declare that never before has such a large number of people gone into the woods. This confirms the impression originally made by Judge Parker's candidacy.

Exchange: If the boy has a healthy body and a healthy mind don't worry about him. The prize student who graduates with honors not infrequently makes a failure in after life. When life's school opens for the boy who has been dull in school life he is often found to be a diligent and successful student.

Monroe Sentinel: The State Journal, of Madison, is authority for the statement that the Barnum & Bailey show paid salaries amounting to over $25,000 in that city last Wednesday. A large part of this was invested in postoffice and express money orders by the showmen, who sent orders to all parts of the world. As a rule the professional showman keeps little money about his person, although many of them wear diamonds and draw big pay.

Superior Telegram: If Secretary Shaw is not careful he will stir up a nice hornet's nest for himself. It has been the custom for some of the banks and trust companies in making payments to women to use only new bills and new silver. This is a favor that is thoroughly appreciated. The secretary finds that this practice tends to accumulate old coins at the treasury as the banks ask for new ones. To stop this practice the secretary has ordered that in the future when subsidiary coins are asked for by any bank or trust company only 25 per cent. of their order is to be filled with new coins.

Milwaukee Journal: State Treasurer Kempf may leave company if he retires from candidacy on the La Follette ticket, according to the latest rumor about in hotel corridors. A state officer and La Follette ticket candidate, it is said, bought at the beginning of the year a supply of postage stamps for his department from the postmaster of a small town who is a personal friend of his. As a result of the increased sales the postmaster asked the Washington authorities for a raise. A postoffice inspector was ordered to investigate and, finding the sales to be bona fide, the salary was raised. Having satisfied his friend, the Madison official now transferred his patronage to the Madison postoffice, with the result that the inspector was again sent to the small town to determine the cause of the sudden decrease in the stamp sales. The increased salary of the postmaster was immediately reduced to his former basis.

Every Patron Is Benefited
In a recent interview President Abner Hurl of the Wisconsin Telephone company denied a report that "A telephone trust" was in process of formation, with a view to securing control of the local companies of the middle west. This report, which emanated from Chicago was due to a misunderstanding of the purposes for which, it is stated, $5,000,000 will be spent by the Bell system during the current year. A recent bulletin issued by the United States census bureau shows that two-thirds of the telephone business of the United States is done by the companies in the Bell system. Their subscribers number nearly 2,000,000 and the lines reach to nearly 30,000 cities, towns and villages. The business is increasing so fast that statistics show the number of subscribers today to be two and one-half times the number four years ago.

To meet the demands due to this enormous growth the Bell companies are obliged to spend large sums of money in improvements and extensions of the system. Telephone apparatus is very costly. Standard switchboards of the kind used in the larger cities cost several hundred thousand dollars, and those used in smaller places are proportionately expensive. Sound business policy dictates that the companies shall own the buildings which they occupy. To acquire the ownership of this real estate necessitates the employment of large capital, but is in the interest of economy. New lines are constantly being built and new exchanges established. Every improvement made in the system is of advantage to all its patrons and the people share in these benefits. Mr. Hurl says that the expenditures of the Wisconsin Telephone company for improvements and extensions will reach the sum of $750,000 during the current year.

English Own American Land.
It is stated that over 20,000,000 acres of land in the United States are owned by members of the English aristocracy and British land companies and syndicates. Most of these estates are situated in the Southern and Western States. A Dutch corporation is said to own 5,000,000 acres of land in the West and a German company 2,000,000 acres in several States. Alien landholders own property in most of the larger cities of the Union.

No Wrinkles in the Photos.
A German photographer, Kunkwald, when taking a picture of a lady of doubtful age places sheets of celluloid between the negative and a printing paper, thus producing a very softening effect which hides the discrepancies of age.

Retort Medical.
An Atchison man went to a doctor and said: "I want to be cured of dyspepsia." Whereupon the doctor said: "If I knew how to cure dyspepsia, I wouldn't have it."—Atchison Globe.

CHAPTER XXVI.

It was the first of May, and the annual reunion of the Confederate veterans was being held in Atlanta. It was the gala week of the year. Every town and city in the south sent its official representatives and its maddis of honor. The hotels were crowded and the streets thronged with an incongruous multitude wearing badges of ribbon. Southern generals and their wives and daughters were holding gay receptions. Everybody was welcome; hands were extended to people from the north as well as from the south. Shouts filled the air when the carriage of an ex-Confederate officer passed through the streets. The bands played "Dixie." Men, scarred and maimed, stood on the street corners and in the bars and hotels and told war stories and sang the praises of Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson. All was mirth and good feeling. From the public buildings, the clubs, hotels and carriages floated the American flag. It hung everywhere, but it was never applauded and yet never hissed. It was beautiful to look upon and stood for peace, patriotism and prosperity. The southerners would have admitted this, and yet there was another beauty dearer to their weary memory—a beauty for which they had fought grimly and lost.

Mrs. Cranston, Lydia and Kitty Cosby were visiting the Dunleighs, a Virginia family who lived in one of the best houses in Peachtree street. George Buckley was in the city, but he had gone only to attend to the work of inspecting the books of a broker who handled considerable grain and cotton for the Darby house.

The broker, Mr. Harry Stone, was a young man of high social standing in Atlanta, and he had formed a strong friendship for George and extended the hospitality of the best club in the place to him and offered to introduce him to his friends, but George refrained from accepting. He was too fine a man to feel at ease in general society so early after his father's disgrace, and Stone understood this and did not press these things upon him.

"I see you've got some stunning girls up your way," Stone remarked as George sat at a desk in the corner of the room "checking up" the books. "It's reported down here that our government runs up that way every change he gets."

"Yes, they are all right," Buckley answered briefly. "She's a Miss Cranston, I understand," ran on Stone. "I've heard my grandmother speak about the family in Virginia. She's visiting the Dunleighs, and I guess I'll meet her while she's here. You know her, of course?"

"Yes, we are friends," George said simply. "I've never seen her," said the broker, "but, judging from her picture, she must be good looking. However, one can't tell about that. The pictures in the newspapers are always bad."

"In the newspapers?" said George, in surprise. "Why, yes; it's in both the papers today, along with an account of the reception the governor is giving to her and her party at the mansion tonight. It's to be awfully swell. I'm not going. In fact, he and I don't get on. The truth is I belong to a little club of young Americans that tried to show him under in the last election, but we got left. He had too big a pull with the ring. He used to be civil to me, but he snarls like a possum when we meet now. He can't forget an injury. Did you ever see him?"

"Oh, yes," said George. "He's been up our way often." "Oh, of course; I'd forgotten. They say he's not been having exactly smooth sailing up at Darby either, but it looks a little like he's making more headway now."

"How is that?" asked Buckley, his blood running cold, his heart sinking. "Why, the reception, you know. That looks a little like she's giving in, don't you think? But I may be dead wrong. She may want to make that friend of hers, that Miss Cosby, have a good time, and the general run of girls would consider it sheer madness to lose a chance like that. Why, it's to be the chief event of the reunion. Well, he's welcome to his glory; it won't last long; he will never get in again."

"You think not?" said George, frowning. "No, he'll never be able to pay the expense of another campaign. He ruined what little law practice he had when he went into politics, and now he's a bankrupt."

"A bankrupt?" George exclaimed. "Why, I thought he had unlimited means." "In a private value," laughed Stone, "I am a figure with the cashier of a certain bank in this town and I had it straight that Telfair got up the last bit of collateral he can raise for money he can't repay. Why, he had to log the bank for a little raise to give this reception. To you know, I suspected he was trying to marry for money. May I ask if Miss Cranston is an heiress?"

"She's an only child," said Buckley, reluctant to continue the conversation further, "and her father is fairly well off."

"Perhaps," said Stone, "he's really daff about her." "That must be it," George replied, and he closed the conversation by going to work.

By midnight his task was finished, and he could have caught a train for Darby, but he felt a strange, half morbid disinclination to leave. He repaired to his hotel, changed his clothing and went down to the crowded dining room, but the very gaiety on every hand irritated him. He had no appetite for what was before him. All around him, at private tables, were gay parties of young people in evening dress. The music of a fine orchestra came from the rotunda. The air was filled with the perfume of flowers. Never had the burden of his birth felt so heavy, never had he so keenly longed for the unattainable. He was in the lowest depths of despair; he had begun to pity himself. Everybody else was having a holiday; no holiday could come to him while his own father was hearing the scourge of the law, while the only things he craved were ending his grasp.

A little warmth came to his cold heart over the thought that Lydia Cranston cared for him, but it was swept away by the icy fear that, despite her regard for him, she was even then striving philosophically to put him out of her life. That striving had begun with the acceptance of the reception in her honor. The next step would be the formal announcement of her engagement to the governor, and then she would begin to look upon Telfair as her future husband. George stifled a groan and rose and left the room. The thought was like the pangs of death. He went out into the streets and walked on and on, going he cared not whither, trying to kill the despair within him. Dark thoughts pursued him, but he threw them aside. He was a soldier fighting blind adversity, and he would fight—fight to the end. He had been walking half an hour when he came to the spacious grounds of the Dunleigh home. A carriage stood at the door. It was waiting for her—her! In a short while she would emerge dressed for the reception. Could he not wait there on the street and see her? No, for it was a closed carriage, and she would be shut off from his view. But could he not, without being seen, get nearer the door through which she would have to pass? The grounds were unlighted, and there were many clusters and hedges of shrubbery. The gate of the drive was open. He stole in and found a rustic seat behind a hedge of rosebushes, where he could remain unseen. He had not long to wait. Mrs. Dunleigh and Mrs. Cranston came out and then Miss Cosby and Lydia. The two girls paused for a moment under the great swinging lamp that hung from the ceiling of the veranda. Buckley held his breath as he looked upon her. He had never seen her in complete evening dress before, and her rare beauty was a revelation to him. She seemed to be at once the girl he knew and adored and yet another who was quite a stranger to him.

The coachman was holding the carriage door open for her, and she swept down the steps and the door closed upon her. The hoofs of the mettlesome horses ground into the polished drive as they whirled her away. Gone from his sight into that of his despair! Buckley sank back on to the bench and clasped his cold hands. He remained there an hour and then slowly retraced his steps down the beautiful street. Soon the illumination at the executive mansion rose before him. The hum of many voices fell on his ears, blended with martial music. The trees on the lawn were hung with Chinese lanterns; from a balcony overhead attendants were settling off costly fireworks. On the very sky Telfair seemed to be recording his triumph over his conqueror. George walked on past the mansion into the reveling mass of humanity that swarmed about the principal hotels.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Buckley hardly knew where he went, but soon found himself again near the executive mansion. The merriment was at its height. A crowd of meeting some one who would recognize him, he walked on rapidly. He wanted to be in motion. It was the only thing that seemed to deaden the agony in his breast. One moment he would elude his hands and stifle a groan of pain as he thought of Lydia's social triumph and her nearness to the man he despised and yet dreaded, and he would pause and look up at the sky as if trying to read there a reason for his misery. He was again passing the Dunleigh house and was about to retrace his steps to his hotel when he heard the sound of an approaching carriage. He believed it to be the Dunleighs and darted into the grounds and back to his former hiding place. He was right.

The approaching vehicle turned in at the gate and was rapidly curving toward the veranda when George noticed that one of the rear wheels was coming off. His heart was in his mouth. He wanted to give the driver warning, but it was too late. The wheel was off. The carriage lurched to one side. There was a chorus of muffled screams from within, and to make matters worse, the horses took fright and began to rear and plunge. With no thought as to the incongruity of his presence there at such a moment Buckley darted from his place of concealment and ran to the aid of the ladies, who were loudly calling for help and trying to break the heavy plate glass windows. Buckley followed the jolting carriage along the drive and finally succeeded in jerking the door open just as the coachman drew his horses to a stand in the light at the steps. George helped the ladies out. "Why, it's Mr. Buckley!" exclaimed Mrs. Cranston, in grateful astonishment. It was a most awkward moment. Buckley could only bow, his hat in hand and pale to the lips. Miss Cosby gave him a knowing look as she extended her gloved hand.

"It was good of you," she said. "Mrs. Dunleigh seemed so much excited over what had happened that she took no notice of Buckley nor seemed to remark on the oddity of his sudden appearance at such an opportune moment. The coachman unlatched the horses from the carriage and led them away, leaving George in the center of the cluster of ladies. Kitty Cosby introduced him to Mrs. Dunleigh, but that lady simply bowed and continued her nervous exclamations of horror at the catastrophe. "I thought we were being hurried into eternity!"

"In our reception gowns," laughed Kitty, who was calmest herself. "Pshaw! Mrs. Dunleigh, I knew the old thing would simply drag and bump along till Harrison stopped the horses, but I do believe you and Mrs. Cranston would have crushed the life out of Lydia and myself."

"Well, I'm glad it was no worse," declared Mrs. Dunleigh. "Come on in. You'll all catch your deaths out here in those thin dresses."

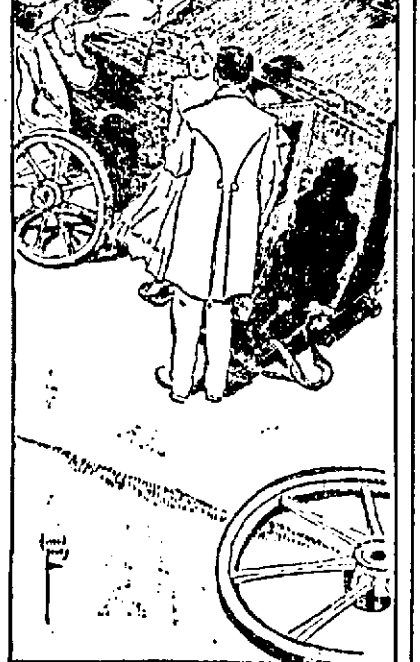

Lydia and George ascended the steps last, and she paused with him a moment alone on the veranda. She had not spoken.

"I have sharply no explanation to make," he said, trying her contritely. "Explanation?" she said. "Why should there be one?"

"As soon as their excitement is over," he reminded her, "they will wonder how I happened to be up here in the grounds at this time of night."

"Oh!" She raised her eyes to his in a startled expression.

"But you may know," he went on—"you may know that it was simply because cause I was dying to catch a glimpse of you. I was half crazed with desperation over it all—all this affair in your honor given by that man—the rumor over the whole state that you are to become his wife. I did not come to Atlanta for this. I came on business. I finished my work at sundown and ought to have gone back home, but my misery chained me here. I won't keep back anything. I passed here earlier in the evening and noticed the carriage waiting for you. I saw that I could hide behind that hedge and see you come out. I did it and drank in your beauty and my deeper despair. Then I came back a few minutes ago and hid again to see you once more. Somehow I felt that my agony would be less then if I could merely see you just—do you understand?—see you after he had told you good night back there in all his glory. I saw the wheel coming off. I knew what was going to happen. I could have remained hidden and allowed the coachman to let you out and thus have escaped this humiliation in the eyes of your friends. But what does it matter? They know who I am. They know why I had to act like a thief to steal a glimpse of the woman who has enslaved me—why I had to do that, when she is the favored guest of the governor of the state and his promise!"

George helped the ladies out.

"Stop!" Lydia cried. "Don't, don't! I can't bear any more. I—I am only a woman, George. I'm only a girl who is being pulled and dragged by others. Father begged me to permit this entertainment, to accept Mrs. Dunleigh's invitation. I refused at first, George, on my honor I did, but father is in a critical condition. The doctor told me not to worry him in the slightest, and he had set his heart on this affair tonight. The poor man loves such things with all his soul, and he thinks Governor Telfair a great man. He actually broke down and cried when I refused; it was pitiful to see his old gray head shaking with sobs over what he considered base ingratitude. Besides, Kitty was included in the invitation. She is my guest, and any natural girl would like to go to such an affair, and mamma urged it. Oh, George, do pity me. Don't—don't think I'm like the rest of the world, for I'm not. I hunger for better things, higher things, but in this case I really don't know what to do."

"Then," he took a deep breath, as if trying to fortify himself against a coming blow—"then you are engaged to Telfair?"

"No! I am not, George. Don't—don't question me so closely. I am not happy. I—"

"But he looks upon this affair tonight as favorable to his suit. Is that not true?"

"He may, George, but I really don't know what to do."

DRINKS SULPHUR TO END LIFE

Husband in Jail for Default of Alimony, Seeks Death.

Laporte, Ind., Aug. 13.—Truman Smith, divorced from his wife and sentenced to the county jail for failure to pay alimony, lies in a critical condition as the result of drinking a concoction of sulphur water with suicidal intent. Judge Richter recently made the decision to commit all husbands to jail who failed to pay alimony stipulated in the decrees of divorce, and Smith declares that he will die rather than comply with the demands of the court.

MINER IS ROBBED AND KILLED

Your Heart.

When Your Heart Fails to Pump Your Blood, Trouble Results.

Have you heart trouble? You have, if you find it hard to breathe after walking up stairs, exercising, etc. If you have pain in your left side, in chest, back or shoulder. If you suffer from cold extremities, pale face, blue lips, dry cough, swollen ankles. If you have fainting spells, breast pain, palpitation, redness of the face, discomfort in sleeping on one side. The only scientific treatment for this whole train of troubles is Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is the prescription of a famous specialist, whose great success in treating obstinate nervous heart disease has made his name pre-eminent in the medical and scientific world. The medicine will cure you. We know it. We want you to prove it. If first bottle does not benefit you, your druggist will give you back your money.

"I have for several years suffered at times with heart trouble. I got so bad I could not sleep at night, and had to sit up on a stool all the rest of the time to get breath. Three of my brothers have died of heart trouble, and I thought I was going the same way, and about two and a half years ago I got a pamphlet about Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and bought a bottle. I took a few bottles and feeling them I recovered, and have had better health since then than before for several years. I can heartily recommend them for heart trouble."—REV. ONE WORD IN TIME

Is Better Than Two Afterwards. A Chance to Profit by a Janesville Man's Experience.

It is a strange thing how people will put away an opportunity until too late; it is the only thing that goes to make up our every day existence; the trouble is we don't pay sufficient attention to them. Backache is a little thing. Sometimes it comes after a hard day's work or a slight cold. It will pass off, you say; it's only the result of overtaking your back. It isn't the fault of your back but your kidneys. The exertion or straining has interfered with their delicate mechanism. You call it backache, but it really is kidney ache. If the kidneys are not relieved, chronic disorders set in and this is where the "little thing" should not be passed over. A Janesville man has learned to appreciate what delay means.

Mr. H. W. Rodgers, carpenter of 210 South Main street says "My wife had kidney complaint and rheumatism for five years suffering a great deal from pain across the loins. Doan's Kidney Pills, sold by the People's Drug Co., brought much longer for and gratifying results. First there was no visible change and she came to the conclusion that they were like all other remedies she had tried but finally the aching and the distress in the small of the back disappeared."

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bed wetting. If it did there would be few children that would do it. There is a constitutional cause for this. Mrs. M. Summers, box 607, Notre Dame, Ind., will send her home treatment to any mother. She asks no money. Write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it.

FAIR GROUNDS A LIVELY SCENE

Work of Getting Ready for the Beloit Gathering Next Week, is Progressing.

The fair grounds at Beloit is now assuming the life of a great city. All kinds of exhibits are being put in place, stands are erected, a merry-go-round is being set up and preparations for the big show are proceeding rapidly.

One of the departments that will call forth the admiration of the visitor this year more than ever before is the art department in charge of Mrs. Fidelity. The walls are being painted a beautiful shade to make a background for the display of pictures and a furniture display will set off the whole. Cozy corners will be fitted up, and seats will make the room a restful one for the tired visitor. This spot promises to be one of the most popular on the grounds.

Ladies' Race a Feature
One of the most promising speed events of the fair next week is the ladies' race. Three or four ladies have already entered for the event, and the way that some of them are driving indicates that it will be no play race, either. Mrs. Cleophas drove the mile in 2:40 yesterday afternoon, and others are also making excellent time. The race will draw one of the best crowds of the week without doubt, and will be full of excitement.

More entries for the races were received last night, and every event will be well filled. Some of them have seven or eight entries, which insures some good sport. More may be in tonight, and by midnight the chances are that the best list of horses ever brought to this part of the state will be scheduled for the meet.

Tooting Your Own Horn.
If you toot your little tooter and then lay aside your horn,
In ten short days there's not a soul will know that you were born;
The man who gathers pumpkins is the man who pines all day,
And the man who keeps aumping is the man who makes it pay.

The man who advertises with a short and sudden jerk
Is the man who blames the editor because it didn't work;
The man who gets the business has a long and steady pull,
And keeps his local paper from week to week quite full.

He plans his advertising in a thoughtful sort of way,
And keeps forever at it until he makes it pay;
He has faith in all the future, can withstand a sudden shock,
And, like the man of scripture, plants his business on a rock.

If he can't write good copy, he employs a man who can,
And the other fellow in his line is classed as "also ran."
You can't fool people always—they've been a long time born,
And most folks know the man is slow who tooteth next his horn.

—Ed. C. Harrell.

As a poem there are others which outshine this little rhyme, but for truth and honest logic, it's a winner every time.

HAIR TELLS CHARACTER.

Color of Hair Said to Indicate a Person's Temperament.

Many people believe that blonde, or light hair denotes affection and dark hair constancy. A person without hair is not devoid of character; far from it. The disposition of the average bald-headed man is to show such solicitude for the welfare of others, that he neglects himself. A germ causes baldness. Prof. Sabouraud, of Paris, France, inoculated a rabbit with Dandruff germs, causing it to become totally bald in five weeks' time. To rid the scalp of these dangerous germs it is necessary to apply Sebor's Hairdressing.

Rheumatism Vanishes.

This troublesome disease, as we all know, is caused by impure blood. Impure blood is more often than otherwise the result of a torpid liver and inactivity of the digestive organs. Get and keep your digestive organs in good running order and the blood will purify itself. Then Rheumatism disappears. There is no treatment or remedy more effective in the relief and permanent cure of all ailments arising from a sluggish liver, like Rheumatism, Indigestion, Headaches, Kidney troubles, Nervousness, etc., than

SEVEN BARKS.

It is not a Patent Medicine, but a pure vegetable preparation, extracted from the bark of a specially grown species of the Hydrangea plant and is compounded by chemists of long experience.

Try a bottle. It found not all claimed for it, return to the druggist and get your money back, or if you cannot spare so much for a bottle, while used we will send you a sample with our compliments. Write direct, and every bottle shall try "Seven Barks."

News for the Railroad Men.

New equipment will be installed by the Milwaukee road on several of its St. Paul-Chicago trains. General Passenger Agent F. A. Miller has announced that three new day coaches will be added to trains No. 5 and 6, the daylight trains between Chicago, Milwaukee and the Twin Cities. The new coaches are seventy feet long and have a seating capacity of eighty. They have smoking compartments and other innovations. The coaches were built at the West Milwaukee shops and will be ready to go into commission on Sept. 1. The Pioneer Limited will also be equipped with new day coaches and a chair car will be added to that train.

Arrangements have been made by the Milwaukee county democratic committee for a special train on the Chicago & North-Western railway to convey the Milwaukee county delegates to the democratic state convention which will meet in Oshkosh on Aug. 31.

The train will leave the lake shore station, Milwaukee, at 7:30 o'clock in the morning and will arrive in Oshkosh at 10:30 o'clock. It is expected that, including delegates, 200 people will go to the convention from Milwaukee.

A special train carrying three companies of the Eighth United States Infantry, passed through Milwaukee yesterday over the Milwaukee road, en route from Alaska to the post at New Rochelle, N. Y. The 175 soldiers were under the command of Capt. Andrews. The soldiers had breakfast at the Union station, a stop of forty minutes having been made. The Eighth regiment was stationed in Alaska for two years.

The annual statement of the Chicago and North-Western railway shows a gross gain of 7 per cent, but, as the accounts include seven months of operation of the Fremont & Elkhorn without comparative figures, the actual gain was about one-third less, or around 2 per cent. The net was at a loss of 2 per cent, or $475,000. An increase in the fixed charges of $95,000 more reduced the balance for dividends $1,000,000 compared with the previous year. The disbursements to shareholders were large on account of a full year's payment on the increased capital against six months the previous year. The earnings on the gross capital—preferred and common—both issues sharing alike after 8 per cent, was 13 1/2 per cent, against 16 per cent the previous year and 17 per cent two years ago. The usual liberal appropriation for betterments was made out of surplus.

The most striking fact in the report is that the gross earnings from operation increased during the past year $3,491,555, yet the net earnings were less by $475,143 than in the previous year, because of the increase in operating expenses of $3,927,025 and in the taxes of $29,260. The operating expenses amounted to 66.35 per cent of the gross earnings. At least 60 per cent of the operating expenses was for labor. As the dividends paid last year exceeded by $352,912 those of the previous year, both stockholders and employees of the company fared better in 1904 than in 1903.

The earnings from passenger traffic in the fiscal year of 1904 were $12,027,708, an increase of nearly $1,000,000 over the previous year. Freight earnings in 1904 were $37,254,529, an increase of $2,083,175.

The report shows gross earnings of $52,234,620; net earnings, $16,107,524; net income, $9,229,741.

THE SENTRY BOX

Too Much Power in One Man.
We often hear of the "one man power" in our government and always find that allusion is made to the chief executive. It suits the partisan purposes of the "opposition," no matter which party may be, for the time being, represented thereon, to seek to make political capital in this way. The unalike experts in unnecessary noise always find this a profitable theme.

But our constitution hedges the executive about with so many checks and restrictions that it is the fault of the people or their representatives if he assumes and asserts prerogatives not properly vested in him.

There is, however, in the opinion of the SENTRY, a one man power that is anomalous and dangerous in the highest degree. It resides, strangely enough, in the judiciary branch of our admirable republican system. It is the tremendous, the uncontrolled, the irreversible power resting in the hands of the one man who gives the casting vote in framing a decision of the supreme court of the United States.

In a trial involving the ownership or value of a sheep before a justice of the peace, the jury must be unanimous. But in our highest tribunal, a trial involving hundreds of millions of money, the permanent policy of the government, possibly the fate of the nation itself, may be decided either way by the whims or prejudices of a single justice.

The opinion of one man in 1877 decided the momentous question as to who should be the president of the United States during the ensuing four years. That decision carried with it incalculable influences on the current of American history, yet a change of one vote would have converted the minority and that one vote was cast by a justice of the supreme court.

The constitutionality of the income tax was adversely decided by a single vote.

In the greatest patent suit of the nineteenth century, the Bell Telephone and Drexelbaugh case, the court was divided into a majority and minority with the difference of only one.

The question as to whether the constitution follows the flag was settled in a way so confusing and inconclusive as to be still the subject of wondering controversy, but the settlement reached certain questions with sufficient clearness to make vital changes in our conceptions of the national function—and one man held the balance of power.

Vast consequences affecting the rights and interests of millions of people may flow from the Northern Securities decision in the supreme court which divided then, as often previously, on the line of five to four.

We lose something of our faith in the court's finality when we reflect that the four dissenters are equally as intelligent, honest and learned as their victorious colleagues—they are merely one less numerous. The clergy warn us not to put trust in riches and the supreme court decides that it is criminal to put riches in trusts—by a majority of one. In theory all of us are equal, but the august bench, with only just enough votes to settle it, relegates our little brown brothers to an indefinite period of probation and tutelage.

What is the remedy? That is a difficult question, worthy the most serious consideration of the wisest legislators. Some claim that it is better that a question be decided wrongly than not decided at all. This is true in the case of minor judicial determination where the right of appeal exists and where the wrongful decision may possibly be corrected by higher authority. From the supreme court of the United States there is no appeal. Hence, an erroneous decision must stand as the law of the land until a reconstituted court or a change of opinion shall permit reversal.

Some propose that a two-thirds vote should be required, in the court of last resort, to frame a final decision. This would unquestionably tend to convince the public that justice had prevailed. But since it would often be impossible to secure a two-thirds vote on either side, many cases must lapse through failure to decide them and the questions at issue would thus remain unsettled for indefinite periods.

It is possible, however, that if a two-thirds vote were really required, the effect would be, as has manifested been the case in jury trials where a unanimous vote on a verdict is necessary, to bring about a more deliberate consideration and a conclusive decision in many cases which are now left in an unsatisfactory state, though nominally decided by a narrow margin of one. Legislative wisdom will doubtless arrive at some solution of this vexed question, but as the matter now stands, the two-thirds vote suggestion is, in the opinion of the SENTRY, the best that has yet been made. Meanwhile, the "one man power" stands entrenched and embedded in the highest ranks of our judiciary, a nightmare to litigants and an aggravation to the people.

8 DAYS FOR $28.00,

Including railroad fare and all other expenses

To the World's Fair

St. Louis, on any of these dates:

August 15th,
August 29th,

September 12th,
September 24th.

This low rate is special on the dates given above and gives you the same conveniences of the white city of tents two blocks from one of the main entrances to the Fair Grounds spoken of heretofore.

A party of sixty Whitewater people have recently returned from St.
Louis, who have been our guests on the eight day, all expenses paid, $28 plan, and they were highly pleased. Another party of 60 people will go into our camp in the near future.

We also make a rate of $30 at any time for a week at the Fair, all expenses paid, which allows you to make the trip when you please.
